

DECEMBER 2022 NEWSLETTER

The Monthly Newsletter of the Center for Arts and Humanities

Faculty Fellow

Ruth Gregory

Assistant Professor, Career Track
& Director of Undergraduate Studies
Department of Digital Technology and Culture
Washington State University, Pullman

“[T]he intellectual significance of the project is that even though how to teach cinema in higher education has been discussed in the past, there are no works that try and connect the way film is taught at the university level to greater issues of inequity in the film industry. This will be the first book of its kind to bring those two issues together.”

Center for the Arts & Humanities Graduate Workshop, Spring 2023

Wednesday, January 18 - 5:00 pm: Op-ed Workshop. Brian Rosenwald of The Washington Post's "Made by History" will offer a virtual workshop on how to write and publish opinion pieces for a public audience. Zoom details to follow.

We will shortly send out a call for Graduate Students to present or perform their scholarship/creative work for Spring 2023. We would be looking for sessions in February, March, and April 2023.

Arts and Humanities Faculty Research Videos
