We were proud to join the many attendees at the opening of the Black Lives Matter Artist Grant Exhibition and Mirror, Mirror: The Prints of Alison Saar from the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation at the WSU Schnitzer Museum. Featured artist Saar spoke about America's history of systemic inequality reflected in housing policies, segregation, and the devaluation of artists of color. Her art will be on display through March 12, 2022. Saar's talk was followed by Black Lives Matter: An Intergenerational Discussion, which was moderated by Dr. Lisa Guerrero, WSU Associate Vice Provost for Equity and Inclusive Excellence and funded by the Center for Arts and Humanities. The discussion showcased the perspectives of Lisa Myers Bulmash, Rene Westbrook, Hasaan Kirkland, and Robert Lloyd whose works reflect and respond to systemic racism.
